The survey team left at dawn and walked north along the dry river bed, counting every heron they saw on the far bank.
By noon the heat was heavy and they rested under the old fig near the ford.

In the afternoon the second team took the boat downstream to the salt flats, where the water turned grey and still.
They logged forty plovers and a pair of spoonbills feeding in the shallows.