Morning herons waited beside shallow water, watching quietly until sunlight finally warmed everything around their nesting colonies along riverbanks there.