Before the poem, a sentence of ordinary prose runs across the page from margin to margin here.

Over the water
under the moon
the heron is waiting and waiting for June

Anonymous

After the poem, the prose resumes and continues across the full width of the page again.